GIRL CLAIMS MILLIONS IN CASE AT THE HIGH COURT

Bid for damages from GP and hospital

Court Reporter
 star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A YOUNG girl from Harlow who was left with irreversible brain damage after battling meningitis is claiming millions of pounds in damages from a GP and a hospital trust.

Lawyers for the 12-year-old say earlier diagnosis and treatment would have left her "unscathed" by the potentially fatal bug.

However, she was left profoundly deaf and stricken by learning difficulties after the illness in September 2003, when she was just 13 months old.

She is now claiming massive compensation – through her mother who was 19 at the time and a first-time mum – at the High Court.

Philippa Whipple, representing the girl, claimed that an out-of-hours GP "negligently failed to refer her to hospital" when he saw her at home on September 28, 2003.

In the early hours of the morning, after the doctor's visit, her mother called again as her daughter's "eyes were rolling" and seemed to be "staring into space".

Mr Justice Jay heard that an ambulance was summoned and took her to A&E at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital.

However, Miss Whipple claimed that a hospital medic was negligent in failing to refer her to a specialist paediatrician, or at least keep her in for observation.

Instead she was sent home. She was brought back to the hospital later the same day and only then treated with intravenous antibiotics. By that time she was "very ill" with pneumococcal meningitis combined with sepsis and pneumonia, Miss Whipple told the judge.

Transferred

She was transferred to Great Ormond Street Hospital and endured "an extremely stormy course" and was hospitalised for many weeks.

"Her case is that, with timely intervention from either defendant, all such damage would have been avoided, and she would have recovered from her illness unscathed," said the QC.

Her tearful mother told the court she had had a "terrible night" with her daughter as her illness took hold. The baby girl vomited "countless amounts of times, more than five. It was a very, very long and tiring night," she said. "My partner was out for the night, mum was away, it was me and her on our own."

She called the out-of-hours service the following afternoon and a GP came at about 9.40pm, the court heard.

Miss Whipple told the court the GP had said the baby was "certainly not lethargic or difficult to rouse during my visit, she didn't look generally unwell".

But her mother said she was sleeping and pale. "I was really upset that I had waited all day for him to come out and I was back to square one again."

"She was still as poorly as anything but I was told it was just a viral infection – she was clearly very sick," she told the court.

Waking up at 4.30am the following day and seeing her daughter's eyes were rolling and staring into space, she panicked and called an ambulance.

Both the GP and the Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust deny liability in the case.

■ The hearing continues.

VE DAY: Young and old mark 70th anniversary of end of war

Day centre goes back to the '40s for street party

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS in Harlow turned back the clock on Friday to mark the 70th anniversary of the end of the Second World War in Europe.

The town's VE Day celebrations included a street party themed afternoon at the Leah Manning Centre in Park Lane, capturing the spirit of the parties held around the country back in 1945.

Many of those attending the day care centre for older people still remember the original VE day celebrations.

Friday's event was extra special for one regular, Gwyneth Edwards-Smith, who celebrated her 85th birthday on the day.

The afternoon's events, which were jointly organised by Harlow Council and Age Concern, included quizzes, games, a raffle and a sing-a-long.

A member of staff at the centre said: "The street party gave some of the town's older residents the chance to celebrate this significant historic event together, just like millions of people did in May 1945 when the whole country celebrated the end of the Second World War in Europe after six long years."

Cadets join veterans at RBL's celebrations

SECOND World War veterans were joined by officers and members of the Harlow Sea Cadets from T.S. Adventure for VE Day celebrations organised by the Harlow Town branch Royal British Legion.

During the 70th anniversary event, which was held at the RBL club in Latton Common Road on Friday, the cadets listened as some of the veterans shared their memories about what was like during the war years.

Music from the era was then played and the evening's celebrations culminated in the lighting of a beacon by Dick Edser, who was accompanied by two of the cadets. A tribute was read by Acting Sergeant (SCC) C. Tomkins.

County's VE beacon blazes during country park ceremony

A BLAZING beacon lit up the sky on Friday evening to mark the 70th anniversary of VE Day.

The evening began with a fanfare played by bugler Nathan Cobb of the Brentwood Imperial Youth Band before Essex County Council chairman Norman Hume read out a tribute.

Cllr Hume then lit the beacon at the Weald Country Park in South Weald which formed part of a national chain.

Also present were North Weald's MP Eric Pickles, Essex County Council's Council's cabinet member for customer services, libraries, planning and the environment Cllr Roger Hirst and groups of Scouts, Cubs and Air Cadets.

Parents in protest over cuts in free transport

ANGRY parents have branded a decision by Essex County Council as a disgrace after it rejected calls to review its policy of cutting free transport for children starting secondary school this September if they attend a school more than three miles from their home.

The plan was first announced last October and was put out for public consultation which ended in December.

But some parents argued the move is unsafe and complained they were not properly informed about the proposal or given the chance to object in time.

Families earning less than £16,500 and children already at secondary school will still get free transport.

At Tuesday's full council meeting, Labour councillor Julie Young put forward a motion calling for a review of the home-to-school transport policy on the grounds of costs to parents and safety. However, it was rejected by 45 votes to 24.

PROTEST: Parents have their say

During the debate Labour councillor Ivan Henderson said: "It is about giving care and safety to our children, who will be forced to go on uncaring, non-dedicated public buses which often drive off without waiting for pupils."

But council leader David Finch said the authority was acting within its statutory responsibility and that the policy "is not for changing".

An online petition has received more than 2,000 signatures and 780 likes on Facebook. More than 50 parents gathered outside County Hall waving banners at councillors as they entered the building.

As the outcome of the vote was announced there were shouts of "disgrace" from people sitting in the public gallery.

Jacob diagnosed with a rare form of cancer

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

THE life of a Harlow toddler was saved after a photograph taken by his mother on her smartphone gave the first indication he was suffering from a rare form of childhood cancer.

Charlene Williams, 29, of Fold Croft, took her two-month-old son Jacob to the accident and emergency department after looking at the photo and spotting an unusual reflection in his eyes.

Subsequent tests revealed he was suffering from retinoblastoma and had cancerous tumours in both eyes.

"I could see a yellow reflex in his eye in the photographs and thought nothing of it," said Miss Williams. "But it got progressively worse to the extent that we could see it in artificial light when we went shopping."

"I became concerned and Googled it and that's what came up. It was a bit of a shocker and I took him straight to A&E and was referred to the Royal London Hospital."

Lucky

"The cancer could have spread into the optic nerve and then into the brain which could have been fatal. We were lucky it didn't get that far."

Jacob, who celebrates his second birthday next week, was diagnosed with a Grade E rated tumour in his right eye – the most severe category – and as a result surgeons had to remove it and replace it with an artificial one. He still has the tumour in his left eye but it remains in a stable condition and he does have sight.

"He is adapting really well," said his mum. "He is so young and his vision

VITAL DISCOVERY: Charlene Williams with her son, Jacob, who is nearly two was bad anyway so it didn't make a difference. He is doing really well and we're looking at sending him to pre-school in September."

Jacob's case is being used by the Childhood Eye Cancer Trust as part of a new campaign launched to coincide with World Retinoblastoma Awareness Week (May 10-16), with posters urging people to use their smartphones.

CHECT chief executive Joy Felgate said: "Our hope is that, years from now, retinoblastoma ceases to exist and no child ever has to experience the trauma of losing their eye, their sight or their life. It's this mission that drives our research into a cure for the disease which really is within our grasp."

RETINOBLASTOMA affects young children, mainly under-fives

RETINOBLASTOMA is a rare and fast-growing eye cancer. It develops in the cells of the retina and affects young children, mainly under the age of five, in either one or both eyes.

Between 50 and 60 children in the UK are diagnosed with retinoblastoma every year, with 98 per cent surviving this form of cancer which has one of the best cure rates of all childhood cancers in the country.

Early detection is vital for the best chance of saving the child's sight, their eyes and their life.

Ashwin Reddy, consultant

ophthalmologist specialising in retinoblastoma, said:

"Although this cancer has a very high survival rate, many children live with the consequences of a delayed diagnosis."

A good day for Harlow

SIR Your correspondent Robert Johnson questioned the wisdom of me quoting The Sun newspaper's effective endorsement of Robert Halfon (Star, May 7).

Allow me then to quote the Labour supporting New Stateman magazine, which wrote: "Suzy Stride is unfortunate in having as an opponent Robert Halfon, one of the most dedicated MPs in the Commons."

More importantly, 21,623 Harlow voters agreed by re-electing Mr Halfon as our dedicated and hardworking MP.

I am very pleased and grateful to the people of Harlow for placing their confidence in Mr Halfon. He fought a clean and positive campaign and I witnessed time after time how Harlow residents wished him well. Last Thursday was a good day for Harlow.

Guy L Mitchinson
Joyners Field, Harlow

Result was no surprise

SIR In recent weeks I have spent many an hour on the campaign trail with Robert Halfon. As an Indian national interested in seeking a political career back home I wanted to learn something of how the British fight their national elections.

It was a very enjoyable and informative experience. What struck me the most was the genuine affection Harlow residents have for Mr Halfon.

Having campaigned with him on so many occasions and seen the respect in which he was being held by people of all political persuasions I was not surprised that he won and with an increased majority.

At the count, Mr Halfon gave a very humble speech. He is without doubt a very good man and most deserving of his success. I wish him and Harlow well.

High Street, Deptford

No easy ride for Tory MP

SIR I have to admit to thoroughly enjoying the election campaign and launching Green politics in Harlow.

What did I learn? That Robert Halfon loves Harlow and despite a very dodgy voting record no other party was able to persuade the people of the town of a preferable, or viable, alternative to his party's current programme. So we continue with another five years of cuts and austerity.

It's vital in the coming months for a real united challenge to grow against Mr Halfon, a challenge that presents real alternatives as well as calls him out if, or when, he votes against human rights, trades unions and foxes as well as for horrendous welfare cuts and attacks on the vulnerable.

The new deputy chairman of the Conservative Party did well to return with such a handsome majority. It's our duty to make sure he doesn't have an easy ride for the rest of the decade.

Murray Sackwild
Green Party candidate

Alternative to austerity

SIR The fact Robert Halfon has been re-elected as Conservative MP for Harlow does not prove the policies he espouses are either fair or just and it certainly does not absolve him of moral responsibility for the suffering inflicted by the government he supported.

Over the past two years the total number of people in poverty in the UK has increased by 800,000, from 13.2m to 14m. The New Policy Institute attributes the growth in poverty to cuts in benefits for which Mr Halfon voted.

London councils are moving 500 homeless families out of their boroughs every week as a consequence of government cuts in housing benefit, according to a report leaked to the i newspaper.

Thousands of homeless families have been forced to leave London in the past two years and relocate in places as far away as Manchester and Plymouth as poor people are "socially cleansed" from the capital, thanks to policies for which Mr Halfon voted.

Paul Krugman, winner of 2008 Nobel memorial prize in Economic Sciences, has written that all the evidence points to austerity having failed and continuing to fail. Thus cuts in public expenditure are not only immoral in that they target the poor, they actually retard economic recovery.

I expect many Labour Party activists will accuse those of us who voted for the Green Party or the Trade Unionist and Socialist Coalition of enabling Mr Halfon to retain the seat. It was not TUSC or the Green Party that split the anti-Conservative vote but Labour.

The Labour Party hijacks the decent instincts of millions of voters by masquerading as an alternative to the Tories and sows disappointment, disillusion and despair.

We cannot afford to continue voting for one pro-austerity party in the hope that it might be slightly less bad than the other pro-austerity parties.

All who support prosperity, fairness and justice for all must help to build a party like Greece's SYRIZA that would offer an alternative to austerity and would, therefore, be capable of inspiring enough people to win a General Election.

Bring back the litter wardens

SIR Now that the excitement of the elections are over and regardless of which party takes over the running of Harlow Council, will they take time to look at the litter problem around the shops and school in Little Cattins?

It is mainly caused by the open, cast concrete litter bins. Firstly, they are too small and secondly they are open-topped to birds, rats, wind etc. causing the rubbish deposited therein to be scattered all around the area.

It is seldom visited by litter pickers. The children see all the litter and think it's okay to throw their litter onto the ground.

I know that some of the litter is caused by the young people who congregate around the shops and the games cage. Obviously they do not help the situation but perhaps decent litter receptacles with a covering of some kind would help.

Perhaps the litter wardens could put in an appearance now and again?

R. Kendle
Little Cattins, Harlow

True cost of solar power

SIR I write to comment on the story in last week's Star headlined 'Hall switches on to solar savings'.

Before I start I need to say that this is in no way a criticism of Sawbridgeworth Memorial Hall or anyone associated with the installation. They have seen a legal gravy train and have sensibly invested capital to jump on.

My wish is to expose the true cost of these panels, who pays and their actual significance as far as the nation's power supplies are concerned. These deals are heavily subsidised, especially the guaranteed 'export' prices over a 30-year period.

The cost of all of these subsidies is paid for by a surcharge on all electricity consumers' bills. There is also an additional hidden cost of keeping fossil fuel power stations available to meet the instantaneous demand when solar power falls below actual demand.

I am as green as anyone but I will not be happy until folk who wish to use solar power pay the full cost of their installation so that the rest of us are clear of their debt.

Ian Kennett
Felmongers, Harlow

Who went to workshop?

SIR Many of us would agree with Bernard Chapman's take on our town centre (Star, April 23).

As recently reported, Harlow Council held a workshop about the future of the town centre and some shop owners and property owners were invited.

Why Mr Chapman and others were excluded the council has yet to explain.

As an interested person I asked the council for a list of those invited but this request was refused. So much for transparency.

Ron Bill
Upper Park, Harlow

Name puzzle

SIR There has long been a tradition in Harlow to reuse old field names and family names for developments in the new town.

So why on earth has the old Rivermill School been reopened and called Pemberley?

Paralympian Anne praised as role model

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertssexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Paralympian Anne Wafula-Strike MBE has been nominated for the positive role model award at the 2015 National Diversity Awards.

The awards, which are held in association with computer giant Microsoft, will take place in Liverpool on September 18 to celebrate Britain's most inspirational and selfless people who have made a positive contribution to creating a more diverse and inclusive society.

Struck down with polio at the age of two-and-a-half and left paralysed below the waist, mother-of-one Ms Wafula-Strike, of Willowfield, overcame prejudice in her Kenyan village to become the first wheelchair racer to represent her country.

"Simply to be nominated for such a wonderful award means so much," she said this week. "As a disabled woman myself, I believe disability is just a perception and really we are all differently abled."

Wonderful

"I am not what happened to me, I am what I choose to become and it would be wonderful if my nomination inspires more people to choose achieve their dreams and ambitions too."

Ms Wafula-Strike, who started wheelchair racing in 2002, was the first ever person from east Africa to compete in the Paralympic Games in Athens in 2004.

She won three gold medals at British disability sports events and made her GB debut at the 2006 Visa Paralympic World Cup.

She also won three gold medals at the DSE Championships in Manchester and was a member of the Great Britain and Northern Ireland team competing at the Assen 2006 International Paralympic Committee Athletics World Championships.

KEEP ON PEDALLING: Graham takes a second to rest during the ride

EPIC RIDE: Cyclist, 65, finishes

Cycle log

- Graham Ellis has raised more than £500,000 for various charities since 1981 when he ran the London Marathon
- He has climbed Mount Kilimanjaro, walked along the Great Wall of China and trekked across the Sahara desert
- Among the charities he has supported are St Clare Hospice, Cancer Research UK and The Stroke Association
- Last year he was awarded the British Empire Medal in the New Year Honours List for services to charity
- Mr Ellis' grandson, Georgie, is a talented teenage boxer and trains at Harlow Boxing Club
- Mr Ellis rode a secondhand bike on the trip which he took with him from the UK. He paid for all travel expenses himself, so all donations would go directly to charity epic American bike journey and raises over £5,000 Graham makes it from coast to coast

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

BY ceremonially dipping his bike wheel in the Atlantic Ocean fundraising hero Graham Ellis finished his "hardest ever" challenge of cycling across the USA.

The 65-year-old grandfather from Elmbridge, Old Harlow, completed "every flipping inch" of the 2,970 mile ride from the western point of San Diego to the east coast of Florida in just 50 days to raise more than £5,000 for Alzheimer's Society.

Route

Mr Ellis, who's fundraising over 34 years has won him a British Empire Medal, was one of only 28 to finish the entire route on April 29 after 44 set off on March 7.

But after completing amazing feats such as climbing Mount Kilimanjaro and running marathons, Mr Ellis said the coast-to-coast cycle ride was his toughest yet and lost 17lbs during the trip.

"It was so hard, and definitely the hardest thing I have ever done in 30 years. The hardest part was having to get up day after day at 5.30am for another ride. Being away from my family was tough as well," he said.

HIGHWAY PATROL: Graham gets some assistance from a sheriff

Mr Ellis lives with his wife Sandra, 65, and has three children Greg, 40, Tim, 38, and Paul, 32 as well as five grandchildren. As a part-time chartered surveyor he had to arrange an extended period of time off work.

He added: "We had 50 days to do the trip with three or four rest days. There was a hotel at the beginning and the end, but for most of it we were sleeping in tents or on the floor of school halls."

The harshness of the accommodation was a factor in what made the trip so tough, with riders having to sleep in their full kit in the Rocky Mountains to fight against the sub-zero temperatures.

"The first few days in Arizona were the toughest as although we didn't do as many miles as some other days we had to climb up to 5,000 feet.

"It also took 19 days to get across Texas where we had to lock our tents up at night because of rattlesnakes."

Mr Ellis was the only British rider and one of the oldest in the peloton that passed through eight US states along the route: California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and finally Florida.

He said: "Getting to halfway was a real high point, but obviously finishing was the best. The low point was at the start where I would be very dehydrated. Once I began to pace myself better it got easier and I got stronger throughout the trip."

Lucky

He considers himself lucky to have come back in one piece as one rider lost an eye, another had a heart attack while several riders broke bones and at one point the truck carrying supplies rolled over.

Along the route riders passed through a series of checkpoints called sags, where some took the option of stopping for the day and would be given a lift to the overnight stop over.

However, taking a rest was never an option for Mr Ellis, who stubbornly dug deep to complete the whole route.

"I was proud to keep going and get a special recognition for completing EFL every flipping inch. I was very pleased to have finished,

ROAD TO NOWHERE: Posing for a picture

HIGH POINT: The riders reached heights of 4,520ft

NEARLY THERE: Graham stops for a picture as he hits Florida

PLANE CRAZY: Graham gets his picture taken by an airforce base

but I enjoyed the trip and made some lifelong friends who I will visit with my wife."

Mr Ellis took on the challenge in memory of his late father who died as a result of contracting

Alzheimer's disease and has already hit his £5,000 target, but is still collecting donations.

Back in the saddle

A CYCLE centre in Harlow will be holding free training sessions, maintenance classes and organised bike rides as part of a national campaign.

Hub + Spoke, at Bush Fair, is running various activities to coincide with national bike charity CTC's Big Bike Revival initiative.

The aim of the campaign is to encourage more people to take up cycling by dusting off their old bikes, get them fixed and learning how to maintain them.

Hub+Spoke is a not-for-profit centre which offers a fully equipped workshop, retail outlet and space for training, education and social activities.

During the BBR campaign it will be running surgeries at various places throughout the town including schools, Harlow College and Princess Alexandra Hospital, free one-to-one cycle training for adults, maintenance classes (women-only and mixed) and rides for families during half-term.

For full details of all activities visit www.hubandspokeharlow.co.uk.

Gala night for appeal

A GALA evening is being held to raise funds for a project to build a community facility with meeting space and a cafe next to St John's Church in Epping.

The drinks reception and three-course dinner in aid of the Heart of Epping appeal takes place at the church on Saturday, June 13.

Entertainment will be provided by performers from local organisations and there will also be a presentation on the project.

Tickets cost £50 each or £350 for a table for eight. For more details, call Roger Lowry on (01992) 560191.

Tradition important to new owner of town's oldest café

TAKING OVER: New owner Seref Aygun, right, shakes the hand of Paul Faulkner

THE new owner of Harlow's oldest cafe has promised to maintain its traditions while at the same time making improvements to the premises.

Paul Faulkner, who ran Cornish Café, at Mill Hatch in Edinburgh Way for 45 years, has retired as he plans to cycle across Europe with his partner, Sharon.

Mr Faulkner took over from the original owner Mr Cornish, from which the café took its name. It will now be run by Seref Aygun who also owns two others in Harlow town centre – Café Elite in The Rows and Jenny's Restaurant in Terminus Street.

Mr Aygun, 51, said: "The kitchen needs to be modernised and taking it on is not going to be easy as the building is so old and improvements need to be made."

"It will be a process of changing it slowly. We don't want to break traditions or scare off any existing customers. Slowly but surely we will be making it better and we strive towards having better service."

He added: "I want to wish Paul the best of luck in his retirement and I hope he comes to see us and visit as he worked so hard here for so long."

Heavyweight problem as town faces obesity crisis

WITH the UK in the grips of an obesity crisis, studies show that Harlow is one of the worst affected towns in the country.

A recent BBC study found that a shocking 37 per cent of 10-year-old boys the town were classified as obese – the highest levels in the east – while a 2014 study by the Daily Telegraph showed 66 per cent of people in the town as a whole were overweight.

Essex weighed in as the sixth fattest county nationally based on the percentage of the population who were classified as overweight.

Tam Fry, spokesman for the National Obesity Forum, said the problem tended to be greater in less affluent towns such as Harlow, with children most likely to be affected.

"A lot of people who are financially struggling tend to cut corners in terms of what they give to their children," he said.

"Also, a lot of families do not know how to cook good food and are dependent on what they buy in the supermarket."

Calories

"Children eat what they are given and have no choice. They don't exercise and parents don't have the time or can't be bothered to make sure they burn off the calories that they don't need for growth, leading to an accumulation of fat."

He added: "I don't know Harlow that well, but obesity and low income go hand-in-hand. Child obesity has doubled in the poorest areas, which I think is a terrible statistic."

Slimming World consultant Carina Trickey, who runs classes in Harlow, said she hoped the figures would serve as a warning and persuade families to change their habits.

"Too often people think 'I have had enough today so I'm going to eat unhealthily' and that's how the cycle begins."

"You don't have to join a gym or run 100 miles to stay healthy. It's about making lifestyle choices and parents need to be setting a better example to their children."

She added: "It sounds like a stereotype but working families on low incomes don't feel they have the time or money to be making home meals and will turn to cheap and sugar-filled foods."

"Harlow does not have many quality food shops compared to Epping, for example."

Homewares retailer creates 70 new jobs

Sewing Bee judge to open new out-of-town superstore

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

MORE than 70 jobs have been created with the arrival in Harlow of a new homeware superstore.

National retailer Dunelm will be opening the doors of its 31,700 sq ft outlet in the former Comet store at the Harlow Retail Park off Edinburgh Way on Tuesday.

The first 50 customers will be presented with a free kitchen appliance by guest of honour Patrick Grant, one of the judges on the popular television show The Great British Sewing Bee.

There will also be a chance to win a £250 gift card and every hour on the hour prizes will be given out.

Mr Grant, who will be joined by Harlow Council vice-chairman Tony Hall, will also meet and greet shoppers and signing autographs after performing the traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony at 9am.

The new store will feature a dedicated

VIP GUEST: Patrick Grant

Dorma bedding department, specialist furniture section and a made-to-measure curtains, blinds and accessories service offering a choice of more than 4,000 fabrics with in-store advisors on hand to help.

The store, which will be open seven days a week, also contains a coffee shop.

Dunelm chief executive Will Adderley said this week: "We are always excited about the opening of a new store. It takes a lot of hard work, investment and commitment getting a new store up and running and we are delighted to welcome our special guest to open our doors for the very first time.

"We are confident our new Harlow store will play a big part in the continued success of the company and look forward to introducing local shoppers to our diverse homewares offering."

The opening of another out-of-town superstore has added to fears over the future of the town centre which have been fuelled by the recent closures of Marks and Spencer and Robert Dyas.

However, a Dunelm spokesman said the location was chosen for "customer convenience" and because of the large floor space it offers.

The company, formed in 1979 by Bill and Jean Adderley, currently has 148 stores throughout the country, with several more opening this year.

Harlow will always be my priority says newly promoted MP

Halfon appointed party's deputy chairman after poll victory

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW'S newly re-elected Conservative MP Robert Halfon pledged he would always make the town his "first and foremost priority" after being rewarded for his performance with a place in Prime Minister David Cameron's reshuffled Cabinet.

Mr Halfon, who polled 21,623 vote to retain the previously marginal constituency, will attend meetings as a minister without portfolio. He was also named deputy chairman of the Conservative Party.

"It's unbelievable," he told the Star. "It's a complete shock. Harlow remains my number one priority as always. I will always love Harlow and I will continue to champion Harlow."

Determination

The appointment is thought to be a sign of the Prime Minister's determination to pursue "blue collar conservatism".

Mr Halfon almost doubled his majority at Thursday's General Election – some 8,350 votes ahead of nearest rival Labour's Suzy Stride, who polled 13,273.

It is the largest majority for a Conservative

MP in Harlow on record. Mr Halfon polled more votes than both Labour and Ukip combined and came out on top in all but one ward in the town.

Speaking after the count, Mr Halfon said: "I hoped to be re-elected but I never imagined I would get the highest-ever majority a Conservative has received in Harlow and to win in every ward but one."

"But having said that a majority of 8,350 is no different to a majority of one because the residents of Harlow want an MP who works hard for Harlow and is a strong community MP. I will continue to work hard for Harlow and fight hard for Harlow. I will champion Harlow."

But Mr Halfon is keen to address issues raised by residents during the election campaign.

"I know that people have had difficulties. I want to carry on bringing jobs to Harlow and carry on championing apprenticeships," he said. "I want to work on skills and the reputation and show people that Harlow is an even better place to live and for the world to recognise Harlow for its incredible enterprise, for its incredible community spirit, incredible green spaces, culture and the birth place of fibre optics."

Setting out his priorities for Harlow over the next five years, Mr Halfon said the town centre "desperately" needed to be revitalised.

Revitalised

He said: "The town centre, part of it, desperately needs to be revitalised. We've got the Water Gardens, which is beautiful, we've got the Harvey Centre which is going to have a cinema and restaurants, but Market Square and three quarters of the town centre, especially Broad Walk is dying."

"I want to work with the council regardless of politics. I think this should be their number one priority because it is a terrible advert for Harlow."

Mr Halfon urged the council to use any available money and apply for every available government grant "to bring shops back to Harlow".

"There should be good shops and cafes all around Market Square," he said.

Personally, Mr Halfon wants free Wi-Fi internet across the town to make sure every resident has access to broadband.

"Other councils have done it, why can't we? It takes money and maybe we'd have to have a referendum to raise council tax but we can also get sponsorship from the big internet companies. I will work with whoever, be it Ukip, VICTORY: A jubilant Robert Halfon celebrates his re-election as Conservative MP.

Labour, whoever to try and make this a reality.

"Because just imagine if everyone who drove into Harlow saw a big sign that did not only say fibre optic communications, you saw a sign that said Wi-Fi free in our town for every resident."

"Let's make it affordable to everyone and let's see if this is possible. I know other councils have done it and I'm sure we can."

He added: "I'd also like to look at the reputation of our town. Harlow is a fantastic place to live but not enough people in the outside world."

"We need to carry on supporting our infrastructure and the roads. Money is coming in the enterprise zone and primary education because there is a big problem in the town with reading and literacy."

Ms Stride refused to give interviews to the media before or after the result but speaking on the podium said: "Can I thank the wonderful Harlow Labour Party, who are amazing and inspiring people every single of you, so thank you."

She added: "It's been a long and hard campaign. It's been a great campaign with lots of fun. To the residents of Harlow - it's a fantastic town and thank you for your support."

Ukip's Sam Stoppicamp, who came third polling 7,208 votes, said: "I have only been a candidate for the last eight months and some of these guys have been campaigning for years, so I'm proud of what we have done."

■ CONSERVATIVE Eric Pickles secured a comfortable victory in the Brentwood and Ongar constituency, which includes North Weald.

Afterwards Mr Pickles said: "It's just a great feeling to be able to represent Brentwood and Ongar again."

Local election results offer some consolation for Labour supporters as party picks up an extra seat

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

LABOUR won back at seat from Ukip to retain control of Harlow Council at the local elections.

The ruling group, who won seven of the 11 wards up for grabs, took back the Mark Hall seat previously occupied by Ukip's Janet Doyle.

They also retained seats in Bush Fair, Little Parndon & Hare Street, Netteswell, Staple Tye and Toddbrook at the count at the Latton Bush Centre on Friday.

Labour were also declared winners in the Harlow Common ward – the seat occupied by former leader Mark Wilkinson – after a recount.

But there was also some success for the Tory group, who won two seats Great Parndon, one of which had been vacated by Ukip's Terry Spooner earlier this year.

Harlow Council leader Jon Clempner said: "Many people who voted for Robert Halfon, also voted for a Labour Councillor, recognising the positive difference that a Labour Council can make in Harlow."

"We won seven out of 11 wards, increasing our majority on Harlow Council."

"The last year has been challenging, and with a Tory majority government cutting funding, targeting the poorest and most vulnerable in Harlow, and intent on trying to make local government implement the worst of their austerity policies, the next few years are going to be even more difficult."

"Harlow Labour and I are up for the challenge, and determined to make a positive and visible difference to the town we love."

Conservative group leader Andrew Johnson said: "We had a great night securing the most votes of any party across the town and winning a seat back from UKIP"

"We won the popular vote with 41 per cent which is a considerable increase from last year's 28 per cent and higher than Labour's 36 per cent."

"In seats that we didn't win we came a firm second place pushing UKIP into third place – Harlow is now back to two party politics and next year's local election will be a straight choice between Council tax freezes of the Conservative Party or more tax rises with the Labour party."

"We came within a hairs breadth of picking up seats from Labour too, within 16 votes of unseating former Labour Leader Mark Wilkinson in Harlow Common and within 87 votes of capturing Staple Tye proving that we were taking voters back from both UKIP and Labour."

Red letter day for penpal pupils

PUPILS at Freshwaters Primary Academy are making friends in various parts of the world with a new penpal correspondence.

Year 1 children at the School Lane primary sent off letters to Dublin while Year 3 and 4 pupils dispatched correspondence to Barcelona. Both groups have now received their first letters back.

Year 3 and 4 teacher Clara Breakwell, said: "We had already written to our penpals in Spanish, introducing ourselves and telling them about our school and our families. In their replies the Spanish children asked us about our favourite hobbies and subjects at school. "Some of the children

WRITE ON: Top, Year 3 and 4 pupils Isabelle Richardson, Sophie Edwards, Tushar Chowdhury and Bailey Johnson. Above, Year 1s Erin Hartley-Smith, Emma-Leigh Batten and Grace Reeves were pleased to discover they shared similar interests, with some delighted to find out their penpals like Minecraft.

"Writing to Spanish children has been a great opportunity for our children to understand the practical importance of learning a language and they are constantly keen to learn new vocabulary which will help them with their letters to their Spanish friends."

Food poll gives tots the taste for voting

Fish and chips the most popular with nursery kids

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

CHILDREN at a nursery school in Harlow displayed symptoms of the election fever which has gripped the country when they got the chance to vote for their favourite meals.

Scribbles Day Nursery, in Kiln Lane, held a food election on Thursday, with three candidates representing their favourite dishes.

After a stirring speech in which she encouraged her nursery pals to vote for fish and chips, four-year-old Georgia Edward was the clear winner with 15 votes.

One of Georgia's key points that went down well with the Scribbles electorate was that fish and chips can be eaten with your fingers.

The runner-up was Daniel Rowe who gained 12 votes for roast dinners while in third place was Olivia Grant, whose support for spaghetti bolognese won her six votes.

Nursery manager Leslie Seville said that before arriving at the nursery Georgia had been to a polling station with her father and afterwards with her granddad to experience the voting process.

"It got quite competitive in the end and the children got very excited," said Miss Seville. "They learned new words, about the importance of voting and what it means to go to the ballot box.

"We taught them very simply about democracy and how rules are made. Georgia was campaigning with the colour blue, so maybe that was telling."

School helps to build 'lifelong friendships'

STAFF at a Harlow primary school are taking a different approach to tackle bullying.

Instead of traditional anti-bullying work, Cooks Spinney Primary is focusing its attention on a more positive friendship-building campaign which aims to create lifelong friendships.

During a recent friendship week children from nursery through to Year 6 completed tasks and challenges together.

At the end of the week the whole school came together to form a giant circle and do a celebratory Mexican wave.

Head of school Stuart Pope said: "We wanted the week to be positive. Instead of telling the children what not to do, it was about promoting friendship and caring about each other.

"We had nursery children working with Year 5 which saw children mixing with those they wouldn't normally.

"We want to establish relationships across the whole school which last long into the future, but also for the younger children to not be nervous of what's to come as they move through the school and to feel included in the school community."

The friendship week, which saw children take part in activities such as tag team races, was such a success, it will now be an annual event.

Official opening for new tots' academy

A NEW pre-school for two year olds has been officially opened.

Pear Tree Mead Academy opened its doors to 16 toddlers entitled to free school funding on April 20 but waited a couple of weeks to hold a traditional ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The pre-school has four full-time staff and runs for 15 hours a week, with government funding being used to convert a former classroom.

Academy headteacher Christine Peden said: "We wanted to celebrate and let people know that we have a new provision for two year olds.

"So far it has been lovely and children have settled in and established relationships with the four key workers. It is lovely to see the children settling into the routines of the pre-school."

She added: "We wanted to hold this official opening to celebrate and thank all of the staff who helped along the way and parents who helped deal with flat-pack furniture."

Final day to enter town's Race for Life

Hundreds to take part in cancer charity fundraiser

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

ORGANISERS of this weekend's Race for Life in Harlow have made a last-minute plea for more women to sign up.

So far more than 1,400 women have registered to take part in either the 5km or 10km runs in the Town Park on Sunday, but there are still places available.

However, with today (Thursday) being the deadline for entries, time is fast running for those who have yet to join the pink army.

Race organisers are hoping to recruit as many runners as possible for the Cancer Research UK fundraiser, and are calling on mums, daughters, aunts, grannies and sisters to step forward.

Courtney Culverhouse, event manager for Race for Life in Essex, said: "We are absolutely thrilled that so many women have entered Race for Life in Harlow but we still have places left so we are urging women to sign up today."

"Race for Life is non-competitive, it's not about being fit or fast. Most women are able to walk 5km in an hour while chatting and having fun or they can choose to jog, run or even dance around the course if they prefer."

Organisers are hoping to boost proceeds from this year's event by encouraging those taking part to undertake a pre-race 'wardrobe workout', sorting out and bagging up unwanted quality clothes, books and accessories which can be dropped off at the donation station at the start point.

All those who have already signed up will have received a donation bag as part of their entry pack. Each bag of donated goods could raise a further £25 for the charity.

Sunday's race starts from the Town Park show-ground at 11am and follows a course which takes in paths within the park and cycle paths outside. Adult registration costs £14.99 (16+ women only) and £10 for children (girls and boys under 13). There is no charge for children under the age of six. To register, visit <http://raceforlife.cancerresearchuk.org>.

"We're calling on the brave ladies of Harlow and Epping to show their fighting spirit once more and take on cancer," said Ms Culverhouse.

Hunt for attacker who left teenager suffering serious head injuries

A TEENAGER is recovering in hospital after suffering serious head injuries when he was assaulted in Harlow town centre.

The 17-year-old victim, who has not been named but who lives in the town, was kicked, punched and stamped on during the attack outside Lloyds Bank in East Gate in the early hours of Friday, May 4.

A second man was also assaulted during the incident but did not require hospital treatment.

Police were called to the scene at about 4.30am after receiving reports of a group of 20-30 men fighting in the street.

Black and white CCTV images of a man wanted for questioning in connection with the assault were released by detectives this week.

DS Tina Hart, of Harlow CID, said: "The victim was kicked, punched and stamped on during this incident and has now been left in hospital with serious injuries as a result.

"I would urge anybody with any information about what happened to get in touch with me."

Anyone with information about the attack or who recognises the man in the CCTV image is asked to contact DS Hart at Harlow CID on Essex Police 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Butchered remains of swan found on riverbank

POLICE are working with RSPCA officers and council officials to find the person who killed and butchered a swan, the remains of which were found on a towpath in Harlow.

The grisly discovery was made by a member of the Harlow Safer Partnership Team at 1.30pm on Saturday, May 2.

The corpse of the bird was found by the banks of the River Stort near The Moorhen pub. It had been left in public view in an area frequented by families.

Inspector Paul Maleary, of Essex Police, said: "This is a very disturbing occurrence. It is an offence for any person to kill a swan."

"There have been a number of high profile cases where members of the public have been convicted for offences against the Wildlife and Countryside Act. Swans are the property of the Crown and are a protected species."

Anyone convicted of killing or injuring a swan could face a fine of up to £5,000 or a maximum prison sentence of six months. Stealing a swan egg is also an offence and carries the same maximum penalty.

Anyone with any information about the killing is asked to contact Essex Police on the non-emergency 101 number or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

The nine-year-old boy who gets paid to play with toys

IT seems like the dream job that's too good to be true – getting paid to talk about toys. But for a nine-year-old boy called Evan, that dream has come true.

The youngster, whose full name and where he lives are kept a closely guarded secret, is believed to earn about £600,000 a year from online video reviews of the latest playthings.

He uploads them to his own channel on a video-sharing website and now has 1.4 million followers. It is popular with both children and adults wondering what toys to buy for their children or as a gift for someone else.

Evan earns the money from companies which want to advertise on the videos.

His fame has quickly spread and he is now becoming something of a celebrity.

"More and more people are recognising him on the street," said his dad. "At first he was a little shy and didn't know what to think, but he enjoys seeing the smiles on children's faces when they meet him."

Even though he earns a lot of money from the videos, Evan isn't allowed to spend it. His parents are putting into a fund for when he is older and goes to college.

Karate-athon is record breaker

Club members also raise £22k for cancer charity

MEMBERS of a karate club set a new world record at Harlow Leisurezone on Sunday and raised more than £22,000 for charity in the process.

Shotokan Karate England staged the karate-athon in aid of the Roy Castle Lung Cancer Foundation.

Some 200 club members, including group leaders Chris Lafbury and Rod Butler, completed 11,700 Kata movements within a three-hour timeframe, breaking their previous record by 3,000 more movements.

The sponsored event was held to raise funds in memory of Liz Lafbury, a senior black belt member of the club who died last year from lung cancer.

Her husband, Chris, said: "I was so overwhelmed by the number of people who turned up in support of the event. Their dedication and hard work was truly touching."

"Liz was a keen karate student and she would have been moved by the sheer enthusiasm of everyone involved."

Iyoba Oba, London area fundraiser for the Roy Castle Lung Cancer Foundation added: "They are such an impressive bunch and fabulous to watch."

"It was so humbling to be there on the day and to see such a wide range of people from different ages and stages joining together to support the foundation in this way."

Pub rock legends come to The Square

THE 1977 line-up of Eddie & The Hot Rods will bring their hard-driving rhythm and blues to The Square this summer.

Formed in Canvey Island, Essex, in 1975 and cited as the originators of the pre-punk 'pub rock' movement, their rhythm and blues quickly gained them a large loyal following.

It was in 1977 that they hit it big with the release of their second album that spawned the smash hits Quit This Town, Life On The Line and the classic youth anthem Do Anything You Wanna Do.

Following various line up changes the Rods disbanded in the early 1980s.

A reformed Hot Rods have been led by original singer Barrie Masters and have taken in various world tours.

Following the passing of original guitarist Dave Higgs, a 2014 memorial concert saw many past and current members perform in tribute.

That concert led to the announcement of this very special concert featuring the 1977 line-up, which also coincides with the 40th anniversary of the formation of the group.

The classic line up from 1977 is Barrie Masters (vocals), Graeme Douglas (guitar), Paul Gray (bass) Steve Nicol (drums) with long serving guitarist Richard Holgarth paying tribute to the late Dave Higgs.

Eddie & The Hot Rods 1977 line-up will perform on Thursday, June 18. Tickets cost £15 in advance from www.thesquareharlow.com.

CURTAIN could fall on 40-year history

AMATEUR drama company Sawbridgeworth Players, which is this year celebrating its 40th anniversary, is rehearsing for could be its final production.

Good ticket sales for the show from Thursday to Saturday next week are crucial for the company's survival.

The group, founded in 1975, will perform a play written by Sue Townsend, author of The Secret Diary Of Adrian Mole Aged 13 3/4, a book which was refreshing in its honesty.

And in the run-up to performances of Bazaar And Rummage at the Victoria Hall in Old Harlow, the Players' cast and crew are having to be honest - in the need to get more male actors, directors and, most importantly,

"bums on seats".

The production tells the story of three agoraphobics - who fear situations where escape might be difficult or help unavailable if things go wrong - trying to put on a jumble sale. Although it is extremely funny, the plot is full of pathos as we learn the reasons why the women suffer.

Sawbridgeworth Players was formed by residents Betty Lennon, Carole Bradbury and Zena Roper, and has been successfully staging plays in the 40 years since.

Chair Sheila Goodwin said: "Regrettably, we find ourselves short of male thespians and, above all, lacking in directors.

"It is also a sad fact that no matter how good a play is, the success is measured by bums on seats, and we find ourselves in a position whereby only good ticket sales for our production in May will allow us to continue with another show.

"This could mean that Sawbridgeworth Players will cease to exist in this our 40th year. For that reason, we are asking people to support us like never before."

Tickets for the performances on May 21, 22 and 23 at 7.30pm cost £11 (concessions £9) from the Nisa store in Bell Street, Sawbridgeworth. Alternatively, email lotsofbears@gmail.com or call 01279 274608. Tickets, if still available, can also be bought on the door.

SPURS legends to talk of 'Tottingham'

FOOTBALL World Cup winners and Spurs legends will grace the Rhodes stage in Bishop's Stortford in an evening of anecdotes and insight into the beautiful game.

Argentinian footballers Ossi Ardiles and Ricky Villa, who won the 1978 World Cup and helped win the FA Cup for Tottenham Hotspur in 1981, will be joined by fellow Spurs favourite Micky Hazard for an evening of banter about a life with the ball.

During the evening, fans will have the opportunity to ask questions of Ardiles, Villa and Hazard.

Ahead of the trio's appearance on Tuesday at 8pm, Tom Durham caught up with midfielder Hazard, who made over 100 appearances for the club and was a member of the team that won the 1982 FA Cup and UEFA Cup in 1984.

What should fans expect of the evening?

It's a chance to get to know the boys and to have a nice evening with them.

Ossi and Ricky are such lovely guys and it's a fantastic opportunity for football fans to get an insight into the game. You get a behind the scenes view - the arguments with the managers, what it was like at the time and everything that went on.

What insights will be given?

It will make it clear that it was a long road to success.

At the time, Spurs had perhaps what was their second best manager ever, but he resigned his position and left the club. Fans will find out the reasons behind why he left. We were set for long-term success.

What do you think of the current Tottenham manager Mario Pochettino and the team this season?

When a new manager comes in he has to find the strengths of all of the players. This season we reached the League Cup final and got knocked out by Chelsea - the eventual league winners. We did beat Chelsea and Arsenal too. The problem has been inconsistency.

What do you make of young talent at Tottenham? In particular, breakthrough striker Harry Kane?

We've brought lots of youngsters through into the team and the signs are good for the future.

As to Kane, the bottom line is without a doubt he has been the star and the find of the season in the Premier League. He's scored 30 goals in what was three-quarters of a season. He needs to be keeping on developing though, because players start playing to your weaknesses and it's important that he develops further.

Who would you compare him to from your day?

Mark Falco (a Tottenham Hotspur striker). Like him, Kane is a target man. Falco scored a lot of goals too. Kane is slightly stronger than Falco, but they are both strong and very physical.

Why should football fans come along for the evening?

Two things. Ossi and Ricky are World Cup winners and part of the second most successful Spurs team in history. Secondly, they are two of the genuinely nicest people you could meet.

Standard tickets are £22.50 a VIP package costs £59 - with a front row seat, a meet with the three stars prior to the show, a free print signed with a dedication and a photograph with them.

Tickets can be bought from Rhodes online at www.rhodesbishopsstortford.org.uk or by calling the box office on 01279 710 200.

Audience moved to tears by Lusitania drama

REVIEW

RAZED ROOF - LUSITANIA: THE FLOATING PALACE

at Harlow Playhouse

By Kevin McGrath

May 7 2015 - Election Day for modern Britain - pretty rough at times. But 100 years ago, we were in the middle of an even nastier fight and on that very day one of the nastiest episodes took place, when the ocean liner, the Lusitania, was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland by a German submarine and 1,200 passengers and crew died.

And in Harlow Playhouse, it was remembered, as the local theatre company Razed Roof brought the event powerfully home to us in a production written for them by Judith Johnson, a playwright with the National Theatre.

Razed Roof is an inclusive arts company for people with, and without, learning difficulties and disabilities which meets regularly at the Playhouse, and which has had a number of productions. If you haven't come across it and want to know more, put Razed Roof into YouTube, and be impressed. The company works in partnership with Sheredes School, Hoddesdon.

Lusitania: The Floating Palace was a remarkable production, and strangely moving. People in the audience were openly crying at the scene towards the end where a huge photo of hundreds of bodied lying in rows formed a background to a handful of bodies on the stage laid out beneath white sheets - and a child survivor was shown them one by one, till as the last one was revealed, she cried out as she recognised her dead father.

What was especially impressive with 'The Floating Palace' was the way it enabled the cast members with disabilities and those without to work together in a way that used all their abilities, and which, so economically, brought the experience to life.

The impact of the performance was greatly reinforced by local musician Pat Crilly, who had worked with Razed Roof to write music and songs for the production, and who performed on stage. Artistic director Annette Lidster should feel very happy indeed - and she was among the performers, in spite of a broken arm in a sling. Well, in theatrical circles they do say "Break a Leg"...

WORTH A WATCH

Mike's TV Film of the Week

THRILLER: MULHOLLAND DR Horror Channel, Sunday, May 17, 9pm
It begins with a screen-full of free-floating jitterbugging couples – they could be from the early 60s – over which is superimposed a shimmering, ectoplasmic shape which then becomes a ghostly shot of a wide-eyed young woman beaming ecstatically as applause breaks out. We also see her with an elderly couple. Cut to... well, what? It's a room, but out of focus. The ectoplasm is still about, briefly. The camera wanders, in unrevealing close-up, over what might be someone asleep, wrapped in a red sheet, before the screen goes black.

I'm only telling you all this because, according to writer/director David Lynch in the bump that comes with the DVD, you've "already seen at least two clues to helping you unlock this thriller". Not sure about that... the thriller bit, I mean.

We seem to be in noir territory at the start, though, with the night drive through the Hollywood hills, the murder foiled by an accident, the amnesia of the intended victim (Laura Harring) and the discovery of a pile of cash in her handbag, but if you're after a tightly plotted genre piece you're in the wrong shop.

Everybody calls this extraordinary movie Mulholland Drive, but the Dr. might just as well stand for dreams – the first thing Betty (Naomi Watts), the beaming female from the pre-title sequence, says on arriving in Hollywood is "I can hardly believe it". When Lynch is at his best (here), he's as good as America has. Unconvinced about the line between imagination and "reality", he manages to invest everything, whether mundane or outlandish, with the same disorientating, ominous atmosphere. The camera prowls, uneasy rather than threatening, and peeps round corners. The colours and the images burn into your eyeballs, while the use of music – and sound, and silence – is masterly. The characters are vivid and the performances memorable (Watts is astounding), and there are so many great scenes – the dream story in Winkie's, the clumsy hit, the rehearsal/audition, the Watts and Harring bed scene (complete with great amnesia gag), the meeting with "the Cowboy", the visit to Club Silencio – does it really matter if it doesn't entirely "fit together" or "make sense"?

To be experienced, not analysed.

TVGUIDE

DILLON turns to the DARK SIDE

Matt Dillon is embracing TV with the leading role in psychological thriller Wayward Pines. He tells Susan Griffin about the show that's being compared to cult drama Twin Peaks

Matt Dillon has been acting since the late Seventies, but is only now making his leading man TV debut. It's not, he'd like to clarify, because he's snobbish about the medium.

"There are great actors who work on soap operas, and that's a horrible experience," remarks the 51-year-old, who plays the lead in the upcoming psychological thriller Wayward Pines.

Suddenly catching himself. "I shouldn't say that, because I haven't experienced it, but I can imagine it's very difficult," he quickly continues. "You've got to make something believable in a very artificial environment. But I never feel snobbish about anything like that."

Laughing, he adds: "Now you're going to quote that!"

Dillon does believe, however, that TV has become a lot more sophisticated in recent years, and that it's now less limiting. "In the past, if it's successful, you're trapped for four years. Why would I do that to myself?" says the actor, who's only committed himself to one run of Wayward Pines, a 10-part series adapted from Blake Crouch's novel Pines and developed by The Sixth Sense's M. Night Shyamalan.

It's already been likened to David Lynch's surreal TV series Twin Peaks, and Dillon can understand why. "But I think Wayward Pines is its own crazy world," he adds. "There are no new ideas, it's how you interpret them that makes them fresh."

In the series, he plays Ethan Burke, a Secret Service veteran and married father of one who's tasked with finding a former colleague – and one-time lover – in the small town of Wayward Pines.

But all is not what it seems. Following an accident, he winds up in hospital, and as events unfurl, the viewer, like Ethan, who has a history of post-traumatic stress, is left wondering whether what he's experiencing is real or not.

"I like this type of character," reveals

Dillon, in that deep, cinematic voice employed for various voice-overs.

"We've seen it before, the fish out of water, trying to cope with the challenges that come in a dark way. The tricky part is that he doesn't become a spectator to the events happening, and that he's proactive."

Shyamalan has revealed he was looking for "a guy's guy" to play the part of Ethan.

"I think the key thing for me is that this character is someone who has to have command and lead well, and I like playing characters like that, and feel that is who I am," says Dillon. "Not always, but when the chips are down, I like to think I'm the type of person that can say, 'Hey, let's come up with a plan', and I think it's a strength I can do that in a character."

The New York native, and second of six children (his brother Kevin's in Entourage), was reportedly playing truant from school when he was spotted by scouts and cast in 1979's Over The Edge.

The film was poorly received, but Dillon's performance led to two more teen movies, Little Darlings and My Bodyguard, both a box office success. His profile continued to rise through the Eighties, with roles in Tex, Rumble Fish and The Outsiders.

Of the latter, in which he appeared with Diane Lane, Tom Cruise and Patrick Swayze, he's remarked: "I was the second youngest in the cast, but I was a veteran", and today he is ambivalent about the pin-up status that ensued, and the fame that's continued, to varying degrees, in the decades since.

"Fame is a weird thing, because I don't think anyone's prepared to deal with it, and everyone deals with it in a different way. I often feel like anonymity is a luxury often taken for granted. Yeah, there are some benefits, you can get tables at restaurants and people admire you or whatever, but there's something to be said for [not getting recognised]."

In the Nineties, Dillon appeared in Cameron Crowe's Singles, To Die For with Nicole Kidman, the comedy There's Something About Mary (he dated co-star Cameron Diaz for three years) and Wild Things. Then in 2006, he earned an Academy Award nomination for his performance in Crash.

Today, however, you sense he feels a certain amount of frustration with how his career has panned out.

"I always feel like I'm being typecast, because I feel like I can do a lot more than I've been given the opportunity to do," he confesses.

"I do feel, if I've had to look at some of my earlier movies, I go, 'Ooh, damn', because I was a kid – but then I have to remind myself that I was learning on the job, and that's OK too."

By his own admission, he can be "very tough on material", and despite writing 2002's City Of Ghosts, which he also directed, he admits he's currently struggling with a script.

"I've got a project that I've been trying to do for a long time as a film, and at every attempt, the story gets compromised, because I can't find a way of compressing it to a 90-minute or two-hour format. I'm not smart enough to do that," he laughs.

"No, I'm kidding, but it's a difficult thing to do because the character spans many years."

Now, he says, he's contemplating following the long-form approach of Wayward Pines.

"Having 10 hours is great to be able to tell a story patiently, and viewers can warm up to characters, sort of the way you read a book – you put it down, you pick it up," Dillon muses.

"I still love films, but I do think there's something exciting about this."

■ Wayward Pines begins on Fox on Thursday, May 14

CELEBRATING 25 years of supporting Canine Partners

PETS Corner's nominated charity, Canine Partners, is this year celebrating 25 years of creating life-changing partnerships.

Founded in 1990, the charity trains dogs to assist those with disabilities to help with everyday, simple tasks that many of us take for granted.

Dogs can be trained to help their owners open and close doors, retrieve items, get undressed, unload washing machines and much more as well as provide company and unconditional love.

Pets Corner is proud to support this outstanding charity and particularly during its 25th anniversary year.

Having a canine partner can increase an owner's social interaction and a dog in a bright purple coat is a good conversation catalyst.

It increases daily exercise routines and gives the owner a good reason to get up in the morning.

For each eco bag sold at Pets Corner stores in the UK, 10p goes directly to the charity, so all customers can do their bit on a daily basis.

Recently, Pets Corner made a special effort to wish Canine Partners a happy 25th birthday.

Each of the retailers' 200,000 customers were asked to donate 25p during April and if they spent over £25 on a single transaction, Pets Corner would double the donation.

These outstanding efforts resulted in a whopping £10,000 of much-needed funds for the cause.

The Essex satellite started in 2008. Training classes take place at Writtle College in Chelmsford, who generously donate their facilities free of charge. Being based at an agricultural college gives plenty of opportunity to socialise the puppies with other animals, including the large selection of horses at the campus.

Helpers also regularly go out and about with the puppies to provide them with experiences of lots of different environments. This includes retail parks, supermarkets, and for some reason, lots of coffee shops!

The pups also have to get used to travelling on public transport, so they go on regular visits to Stansted Airport, train stations and bus stations. Last year, Firstbus Essex even gave us our own bus for the day to help with the puppies training.

Emily Lawrence, satellite co-ordinator, has been training companion dogs for nearly eight years and has also studied British Sign Language, which has proved very useful in helping deaf dog owners to train their dogs. She currently has a Jack Russell Terrier she trains and competes with in obedience and agility.

FORD'S 'TRANSIT SHOW LIVE' HIGHLIGHTS THE LATEST TECHNOLOGY IN THE UK'S FAVOURITE CV RANGE

Gates Ford Transit Centres in Harlow and Stevenage are the venues for a 'Transit Show Live' event that will showcase the latest technologies and features in the expanded Ford Transit commercial vehicle range.

Transit Show Live, which runs from 16-25 May, will also launch the specialist Ford Transit Centre network, dedicated to the sales and service of the full Transit range.

A fully product-trained team will be on hand to demonstrate key features of the latest technology-packed Ford commercial vehicles including the full Transit range, Fiesta van and Ranger pick-up.

Among the technologies on display is Active City Stop, featured on the Transit Connect. Designed to help reduce the likelihood of the van colliding with the vehicle in front in slow-moving traffic, Active City Stop will automatically apply the brakes if sensors detect that a collision is likely.

Customers will also be shown the full loading capabilities of each vehicle including the load-through bulkhead on the Transit Custom and Transit Connect which allows the transport of three-metre pipes. Further technologies such as Load Adaptive Control, sense the weight being carried in the vehicle and adjusts braking inputs via the Electronic Stability Control system to help maximise driver control.

SYNC with Emergency Assistance, available on the full commercial vehicle range, will also be demonstrated. This feature enables drivers to use voice commands to operate most popular MP3 players, Bluetooth-enabled phones and USB drives. Emergency Assistance automatically places a call with the emergency services on a paired Bluetooth-enabled phone when an airbag is deployed or the fuel pump is deactivated.

Ford Telematics powered by Telogis will also be available for demonstration. This provides fleet operators with unique live Ford diagnostics to help improve efficiency, safety and productivity of their fleets.

The event will also showcase Gates Ford Transit Centres and explain the advantages of the Transit24 commercial vehicle service promise. Ford's elevated service proposition, Transit24, offers extended opening hours to reduce the amount of time that customers' vehicles are off the road. Customers will also benefit from easy-to-book while-you-wait servicing and priority treatment for urgent repairs.

There will be some exclusive offers available at Gates during the event including free SatNav* with every Transit sold during the event and 10% discount on tow bars and seat covers. There will also be some very special vehicles on display at Gates Transit Centres on selected dates during the event- these include a 1966 Ford Transit and a brand new Gold '50th anniversary' Transit Custom and Transit Courier.

The Ford Terrier Campervan will be available to view during the event and in addition, at Gates of Stevenage on Sunday 24th May, you will have the opportunity to see the Terrier, Terrier XL and Connect, all in one place at one time. Perfect with the summer months fast approaching!

Moe Ali, Group Transit Centre Manager at Gates, said: "Since the launch of our Transit Centres, the feedback received from our customers has been very positive. The Transit Show Live Event provides an excellent opportunity to further showcase the fantastic range of products and services available." Moe continues, "During our event, there will be a number of exclusive offers available and a fantastic range of models to view including special edition and heritage vehicles, making this an event not to be missed!"

Transit Show Live runs during Ford's celebrations for the Ford Transit's 50th anniversary. Since the first vehicle left the production line in Langley, England, on August 9, 1965, almost eight million Transit and Transit Custom models have been built. Add Transit Connect and Transit Courier to that milestone and total Transit production is scheduled to top nine million during 2015. Ford's Transit Centres nationwide have played a vital role in boosting commercial vehicle sales, with March registering Ford's highest sales month of CV sales ever.

Transit Show Live launches on Saturday 16th May and runs until Monday 25th May. During the event, Gates Transit Centres in Harlow and Stevenage will be open 7 days a week, including Bank Holiday Monday.

If you pre-book an appointment during the Transit Show Live Event, Gates will be offering a FREE Accessory Pack worth up to £349+VAT when you purchase a new Commercial Vehicle between 16th and 25th May 2015.

For more information, or to book your appointment call Gates of Harlow on 01279 213985 or Gates of Stevenage on 01438 530434. Alternatively visit www.gates.co.uk.

Free accessory pack offer applies when you pre-book an appointment at a Gates Transit Centre and subsequently purchase a new Ford Commercial Vehicle from Gates between 16th and 25th May 2015. The offer can only be taken once by any one qualifying customer. Accessory packs subject to availability and cannot be exchanged. No cash alternative. Cannot be used in conjunction with any other offer.

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

MISSING CAT (REWARD)

My beloved cat Nikki has been missing since 15th April 2015 from Gordian Way, Chelms Manor, Stevenage. She is a 4 year old female tabby cat. She doesn't wear a collar but has been microchipped (if anyone takes her to the vets they will scan her free of charge and help reunite her with her family).

Nikki is a very timid cat therefore she probably won't approach strangers for help. If anyone sees her please contact me on 07758048975.

Thank you.

Essex County Cricket Club

Tait set for final push during his T20 return

Aussie paceman aims to propel Eagles towards glory

by Oliver Harbord

sportsdesk@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RETURNING fast bowler Shaun Tait is hoping to repay the faith shown in him by Essex head coach Paul Grayson.

The Eagles get their NatWest T20 Blast campaign under way on Friday at Hampshire, with Tait joining the squad for the competition.

The 32-year-old Australian played for the Eagles in 2013 when they made it to Finals Day, losing in the semi-final to eventual champions Northamptonshire Steelbacks.

But the experienced bowler feels that there is no reason why Essex can't go one better this time out.

He said: "When I played a couple of years ago it was good fun, so I had the opportunity again and now I am just playing T20 cricket, so have a lot of time on my hands to play for the whole tournament, hopefully."

"It is nice to have the faith from the coach but now hopefully I can repay it; that is the battle."

Repeat

"You have to turn up and play well night in and night out. Last time I played I had a reasonable tournament, bowled well and took some wickets, so if I can repeat that then I will be happy."

"It sounds like a cliché but it is more of a team thing, if we can make the Finals Day and then the goal is to win it, then I feel like I have done my job."

"We have some seriously experienced players so there is no reason why we can't go close."

"We are a similar side in some ways to when I was here before. A lot of guys that have played a hell of a lot of cricket. There is no reason why we shouldn't play well."

"We came pretty close and I think with the team we have it should be a similar sort of thing, trying to make it to Finals Day and hopefully we can go one better this year."

ter this year.

"It will be tough, there are guys like [Chris] Gayle, [Mahela] Jayawardene, [Kumar] Sangakkara and [Glenn] Maxwell, so there are some big names."

Tait also admitted that he is looking forward to playing at Chelmsford again for the home team, having played for the opposition with Durham in 2004 and Glamorgan in 2010.

"I think there is only 5,000 people at Chelmsford but it is always a good atmosphere," he added. "I really enjoyed the home games last time and it is good to be on the home side of the fence."

"I have played a couple of games against Essex before and I would cop a fair bit of grief on the boundary, especially being an Aussie. It is good to be on the Essex side."

Tait has had an illustrious one-day career, but injuries throughout his time restricted him to only three Test matches.

In recent years the paceman has made his name as a T20 specialist, having previously played for the Rajasthan Royals in the IPL and the Melbourne Renegades in the Big Bash.

But with the Tait once clocking a speed of 99mph with the ball, he will be giving his all for the Eagles.

Tait said: "It would be nice to be involved with a team more often and play in all forms, but the way my body has gone over the last few years it is just better to play T20. But I can't complain, I am still playing cricket."

"You know you can go hard all the time, with it being only four overs."

"It is high-intensity cricket, which suits my game pretty well."

"You usually have a few days off afterwards before the next game and that helps so that you can get through a whole tournament."

"I tried to play one-day cricket again this season back in Adelaide and midway through my third game I got injured again, so it didn't work out."

"It is not always a bowler's game but sometimes you can get away with it. If you go for a few runs then no one gets too down on you because it is expected really."

Wait is over, I'm ready for Blast

I HAVE had the good news that I have been declared fit for this weekend so I'm available for selection for both of the matches.

With the form we have had over the past couple of years in the T20 competition, I am sure that everyone in the dressing room will be wanting to be a part of it.

This week we have been working on the T20 specifics as we haven't been able to work much on the white-ball cricket, because it has all been about the County Championship.

I back myself to hit the ball a long way, but unfortunately it is not always the way when you're in the middle.

Shaun Tait has joined up with the squad now and we missed having Taity last year.

It is brilliant to have him back and we did well with him in 2013, we are just hoping that he delivers like he did last time because he was phenomenal.

Last season we got off to a great start and beat Middlesex, Hampshire are a top side, but it is not a bad thing to be playing them early.

This is when they might have a new player or tactic.

The last thing you want to do is play these teams when they have a couple of wins and are confident, so I think the fixture list has been very kind to us.

On Saturday I bowled five overs for Colchester against Chelmsford and I was really happy to get some overs in.

Bowling in a game is something that I have missed massively.

Unfortunately, the wicket at Chelmsford was atrocious and when I turned up it was soaked through.

It would have been nice to come back to play on a nice, quick wicket but I had to deal with what was in front of me.

There are some decent pitches in the league, like Brentwood have a decent track and the pitch at Colchester's Castle Park is brilliant.

Being from Ipswich, I am also looking forward to the Championship play-off semi-final second leg between Ipswich and Norwich on Saturday.

I have had a few words with Jaik [Mickleburgh], who is a Norwich fan, and I am very confident that Ipswich can do the job on Saturday.

I thought they did really well at the weekend, I have seen them a lot this season and they are very strong defensively and if Daryl Murphy can keep banging the goals in then I am sure they can do it.

As a professional sportsman I can sympathise with the two teams going into this match, being a one-off game.

It is down to whoever performs best, and I am sure Ipswich can do that.

Ryder settles into rhythm after finding a happy home

JESSE RYDER has described himself as "settled" in Essex after another good start to the County Championship season.

The 30-year-old New Zealander has had something of a chequered past, with off-the-field incidents leading him to being dropped from his national side and an attack outside a bar in Christchurch leaving him in an induced coma just over two years ago.

Eyebrows might have been raised when Paul Grayson brought him in at the beginning of the 2014 campaign, but it has turned into an inspired decision.

Ryder took 44 Championship wickets last term at an average of just over 18, becoming something of a cult hero at the Essex County Ground.

Primarily known as a batsman through his career, even he admits his performances with the ball have come as a bit of a shock.

He said: "My bowling was definitely a surprise package to, I think, everyone."

"But it is something that I enjoy doing, it really keeps you in the game. Especially if you are not scoring runs, you can do damage with the ball and hopefully I can keep doing that this season and continue."

"I really enjoy it here so it was great to be able to sign a two-year deal. I feel really settled with a great bunch of lads and the cricket has been really good for me."

"I have just enjoyed being over here, which I guess has helped my performances."

"The bowling has definitely come along quite a lot, and I haven't been able to do it as much over in New Zealand, so I have been enjoying that."

"I slipped a disc in my back and it was sitting on a nerve over the winter, so my right side was a bit stuffed up for about two and a half months. But that seems to have come good now."

With the NatWest T20 Blast starting for Essex at Hampshire on Friday, Ryder will once again be one of the main attractions.

He hit 317 runs in the competition last term, but feels that he can go better this season.

"Batting-wise, I have been a bit low on runs so I am hoping to make a bigger impact this season, especially in the T20 game," Ryder added. "I am looking forward to scoring some runs."

"We just have to play our game. We are a strong side, although we have a couple missing with the IPL."

Ryder will be joined by Australian fast bowler Shaun Tait, who has signed on for the T20 season.

And Ryder is hoping he can help make an impact in front of a big Chelmsford crowd.

He added: "It is always good to play in front of good crowds and all the boys are pumped to try and whack the ball around a little bit."

"Taity [Shaun Tait] was here a few seasons ago and had a big impact on the team, so hopefully he can do the same."

"I love the crowd at Chelmsford and there is always a few cheeky guys in the crowd, but that is just part of it."

Captain bemoans poor start

A POOR display in the field and with the bat saw promoted Harlow Town succumb to defeat in their first Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League Division Two match.

Neil Gladwin's men failed to take their excellent cup form into their home match against a Wickford side who are expected to be one of the favourites to bounce straight back up after relegation from Division One last season.

Chasing a mediocre 178, Harlow, missing key players who were unavailable, were skittled for just 87 at Phoenix Park to lose by 91 runs.

Gladwin lost the toss and the visitors decided to bat first.

Wickford were quickly reduced to 29-2.

Wickets fell at regular intervals and Chirag Dessai provided overseas player Ramya Upadhyay with his first wicket of the season when he drilled a half volley at Ashley Alderson who made a fantastic catch at short extra cover.

Wickford captain J. Sloane (22) demonstrated his experience by stemming the fall of wickets, alongside Jonathan Pratt (36).

But the visitors struggled to 178 in 52 overs.

New opening pairing Shiraz Ali and Alderson were optimistic of another successful run chase.

But this optimism came crashing down after a devastating spell of controlled in-swing bowling from Jamie Went, who almost single handedly wrapped up Wickford's first win of the season.

With his first ball of the innings, he bowled Ali via an inside edge and four balls later removed Alderson, clean bowled with the score on 2.

Joe Holland went soon after, trapped in front for 11 and with the score on 15, things were looking ominous for Town.

Captain Gladwin played on to Sloane for the third duck of the innings to leave Town reeling at 20-4.

Went finished his impressive opening burst having Upadhyay caught down the leg side for 16.

Dan Farmer and Dan Baldwin tried their hardest to bat out time.

They faced 43 and 48 balls respectively, but when Farmer and then Omer Ayaz were dismissed, the game was virtually over.

Owais Qasim's exit meant the hosts were bowled out for 87.

"We knew that Wickford would be a tough unit to crack, but we didn't help ourselves with a below-par fielding display and, with one or two exceptions, a very poor batting display," said Gladwin.

"We will need to regroup quickly as we face the other relegated side, Ardleigh Green, this weekend."

Canons on fire

CANONS Brook Golf Club's youngsters have got their Essex Youth Shield campaign off to a flying start.

The team from the Harlow club defeated Epping and Thorpe Hall 3-2 in their two opening matches.

They top their eight-team table.

Canons Brook are next in action at Garon Park next Saturday.

great weekend our young athletes have had. I'm especially pleased that some have got out twice, which shows tremendous commitment."

"Alongside some of the club stalwarts there were some new faces and I just wish we could get even more out to compete."

"Weekends like this just prove

The side, managed jointly by Jamie Sands and Terry Angell, won the Division One title.

They also triumphed 4-0 Division One Cup final.

Richard Budd, Connor Lynch, Ben Smith and Aaron Bowden scored in their 4-0 win in the cup final against Avondale Rangers.

Most of the team are 16 and

Win and second for karters

HARLOW karting teams Team G3pro and Team Farécla celebrated podium spots in their latest races at the Red Lodge Raceway in Suffolk in round three of their national championship.

G3pro drivers Matt Hale and Barry Luetchford have now won all three rounds of the championship.

Meanwhile, Team Farécla managed second in their race, celebrating their first time on the podium.

G3pro secured a pole position through Luetchford.

The race start was fairly clean, and at the first of five pit-stops, G3pro were eight seconds ahead of the chasing pack.

Both drivers then set a blistering pace to extend the gap to 45 seconds over the second-placed team.

But disaster struck when Luetchford collided with a back marker in his final stint.

With G3pro now ten seconds behind the new leaders, Hale set about the task with gusto.

He quickly regained the lead and crossed the line to make it a hat-trick of wins for Team G3pro.

Hale said: "We weren't expecting to win at this track, but an amazing qualifying session from Barry really gave us the advantage which we eventually needed."

"Again our strong strategy and quick race pace ultimately proved to be enough to secure our third win of the season."

Meanwhile, Team Farécla performed brilliantly to seal second spot.

Craig Luetchford secured eighth on the grid after qualifying.

Joined by stand-in driver George Turner the pair overcame a spin to take runner-up spot.

Craig said: "That was a tough race - we are both obviously delighted to have finished on the podium but we do feel we were good enough for the win."

Round four is at Whilton Mill.

Judo club throws top annual championship

Tournament falls on day of formation 36 years ago

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

A JUDO club which was launched 36 years ago had plenty of reasons to celebrate at its annual closed championships.

Harlow Judo Club was launched by senior coach Mick Ellis back in April 1979, and holds its yearly champs as close to its birth date as possible.

Then known as KASCA, the club operated out of a disused building in Foldcroft, still its home almost five decades on but now its permanent venue from this year.

This year the championships took place on April 18, the very date the club was first formed.

The club members are weighed and then divided into groups of up to five for fighting, giving them at least three or four bouts each.

In the open section the club was divided into U8, over eight and U16 sections.

Worthy winners

The U8s fought for the Charlie Barnes Shield and the over-8s for the Steve South Cup.

All the individual awards and club annual awards went to worthy winners and were presented at a social event during the evening.

Championships trophies went to: Senior groups: 1st lightweight (LW) Adam Pope, 2nd LW Jack George, 1st middleweight (MW) Ian Thomas, 2nd MW Danny Webb, 3rd MW Leigh Hemming; 1st heavyweight Alex Hemming.

Open section U8s: 1st Macey Brown, 2nd Ralfy Webb.

Over 8s and U16s: 1st Thomas Lambert, 2nd Chloe Rogerson, 3rd Brad Chaplen, 4th Finley Hampton.

HAWKS UNDONE BY INJURY CURSE

'Thurrock game should have been called off' says TC

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

AN "horrific" catalogue of injuries unheard of in a solitary season had a dramatic impact on Harlow Town's season, said Hawks chief executive Tom Cunningham.

Speaking to Star Sport in the fall-out of the Hawks' heartbreaking Ryman North play-off final defeat to Thurrock, Cunningham spelled out how the Harlow title juggernaut was derailed by the ankle break to striker Alex Read in February.

But the pivotal match which saw another key injury was at Thurrock, witnessed by this correspondent in January.

This game was delayed by almost an hour when Harlow player Sam Holloway suffered an horrendous double leg break.

Cunningham believes this match should have been abandoned.

But play continued and Thurrock won 2-1.

These points would have not only been the difference between Harlow winning the title but also enabled their Essex rivals to get into the play-offs.

Thurrock finished just two points ahead of sixth-placed Brightlingsea Regent in the table.

Cunningham said: "If you go back through the season we have had a horrific set of injuries.

"Go back to the start and we have had two breaks [Read and Holloway] and three cruciate ligaments [George Smith, Luke Cuthbert and John Glowacki].

They are things that you can't legislate for.

"I have never heard that before at any football club. It's quite unusual. With those setbacks I still think we dealt with them.

"We have had to go out and replace five first team players. That's been difficult. I think we did [replace them] to a point."

Chapman and Cunningham moved quickly to counter for the loss of Holloway and Read, with Marc Gorbell signed from Burnham Ramblers and former Colchester United striker Jamie Guy a late coup.

"For Sam we brought Marc in, for Alex we brought Jamie Guy in. We also convinced Junior Dadson and Leon Antoine to come back to the club.

Plugged

"We plugged loads of holes and that's why we sustained the push that we sustained. I think we did everything we possibly could, and I think the players have done everything they possibly could.

"Going back to the Thurrock game when Sam [Holloway] broke his leg, if you look at that game, that was a game that should never have continued.

"The game was even, and we waited over an hour. I know for a fact Thurrock didn't want to continue the game.

"I can understand why. Because of the injury, that's a game that should never have stood. Unfortunately we got beat, but even if had we won the game, my hand on my heart that made a mockery of what we are trying to do."

HONOUR: Wade Norcott was assistant referee at the FA Vase final at Wembley last Saturday

Wembley at the double for Norcott

WEMBLEY appearances seem to be coming along like London buses for Sky Bet Championship assistant referee Wade Norcott.

Just a week after running the line in the FA Vase Final, won by North Shields after extra-time, the 31-year-old Harlow official has been confirmed as assistant referee for the Sky Bet League One play-off final between Preston North End and Swindon Town on May 24.

Norcott has been officiating since 2001, starting off in the Harlow & District League.

He has been a regular assistant referee in the Championship this season, and only a fortnight ago refereed the Middlesbrough versus Brighton match. This was the highest Championship attendance this season.

He also ran the line at the FA Cup fourth round tie between Derby County and Chesterfield again in front of a huge crowd.

Norcott admits he was nervous prior to the FA Vase final, the first time he had officiated at Wembley.

The former Brays Grove student, of Copshall Close, explained: "I was a little bit nervous. The FA really looked after us.

"Both teams generated an excellent atmosphere. It was such a great experience.

"Fortunately I was on the non-bench side so I was able take it all in when there were breaks in play."

Norcott, a cancer services manager at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital, was watched by his parents and grandparents, making it an extra special day for him.

"To get two Wembley appearances in a week, you could not have scripted it this season. I feel so humbled. The support up and down the country has been overwhelming," he added.

Harlow skipper sets his sights on title and promotion

MARIGOLDS skipper Rehman Ahmed remains confident his Harlow side can challenge for the Division One title this season.

Ahmed, who hit 95 as Harlow drew at home to Hainault & Clayhall on Saturday, gave league debuts to two new signings, plus a first team league debut for 14-year-old run machine Alan Jones, who will also be sharing wicket-keeping duties this season.

Hafiz Yawar has been brought in from Loughton to strengthen the middle order.

Fast bowler Mustander Meraj is opening the bowling.

Ahmed has high hopes for both players as he targets the title and promotion.

He said: "Hafiz will solidify the middle order. We will push for the title and maybe promotion. I would like to get into the Premier Division next season. As a team we are good enough to do it."

Jones (4) struggled with the bat again and is clearly adapting to a huge step-up.

"We will persevere with him. He is still learning but he has so much quality in him," the skipper added.

Put in to bat after losing the toss, Ahmed joined youngster Nino Calvino (32) at the crease and these two steadied the innings.

Experienced left-hander Ahmed Khawaja joined his captain with the score on a knife-edge at 61-2.

Ahmed's excellent timing found gaps, while Khawaja hit a flurry of boundaries.

The two went on to produce an exhilarating partnership of 122, before Rehman was dismissed for 95 caught in the deep.

Khawaja (109) continued his onslaught before Rehman declared after a huge six which went so far the ball was lost, Harlow finishing on 273.

In reply, Hainault & Clayhall went quickly to 40 without loss, before new boy Meraj removed Rameez Rehman for 23, caught behind by a flying Jones.

Then Nick Baxter bowled the other opener for 15 leaving Hainault reeling on 40-2.

With the wicket drying out in the sun Hainault opted for the draw and finished on 208-5 after 47 overs as the game petered out. Skipper Mousshin Ismail top scored with 93.

Harlow, who are away to Hutton on Saturday in the league, picked up ten points from the game. "We found it quite hard to penetrate their line-up," admitted Rehman.

Meraj and Nick Baxter both took two wickets each.
